Holy Saturday Mid-day Reflection

Reflections on John the Apostle and disciple of Christ Jesus. In the hours that pass, I am reminded of the pull of the world to run errands, check off the 'honey-do' list or prepare my heart and soul for the Easter Feast. My God, My Savior has conquered Death. As night falls the dawn of a new day for all of time and all humanity will come. Love John

Today there was no quiet…We would have spent this Sabbath in quiet prayer.
We heard the Temple guard did not let anyone into the temple area because of the earthquake. The chatter of the crowd was constant and there was still a stir about the triple crucifixion. The Roman guard was out in force during the day, as the commotion from the previous day spilled into this Sabbath day. The passersby, arguing about the death of the prophet.

Mother and Magdalene busied themselves. There was a solemn agony that was palpable. Everything moved slowly as those two took stock of what sweet spices and ointments they had to complete the rushed burial and agreed that at sunset they would go to market to buy more. There was no relief from commotion on the street. The more I sought the peace of silence, the more I became aware of every sound. Even the noise of the soldiers' horses snorting as they trotted stung my ears as they were passing by the house. I new enough of the Roman tongue to know the soldiers were cursing, they cared nothing for our Sabbath. Their loud laughter and shouting kept me on edge.
I had brought my sword for protection. Every time I heard a voice coming nearer or passing outside of our door, my hand went to the sword.
Mother did not want to see the sword, she had had enough violence in the past 24 hours.
I told her: "He warned us in the garden mother that there would be a time when we would need to secure our scabbard."
Her look was enough... she would not have it. And so to honor her request, I untied the belt and put the sword near my mat by the door.
She nodded. There was a trust in her eyes that I wish I could hold myself, and the soft loving look that reassured me that somehow, God would work it out.

I knew the look. I saw it in Cana, I saw it on the road when He had fallen under the weight of the cross. She looked at Him, and when Jesus opened His eyes, He saw Mother and that look drew Him to his feet… He gathered every bit of strength He had and stood up with the cross. He took only a few steps before the guard took the cross from Him and dragged it the last few meters up the hill. They dragged Jesus along and stood Him there over the cross they laid on the ground. There they tore the blood clotted tunic from him... he gasped and Mother was there to catch Him with her eyes. Just then the guard pushed Him down upon the wood. His thorn crowned head hit the beam…
Blam, blam.. I was jarred by the knock at the door…
Time froze. Mother looked at me with fear… I ran to the mat and drew my sword.
I looked to Magdalene, "take mother and go to the back room…"
The knocking continued, this time I heard a familiar voice…"John… John… it is I Matthius, the brothers have sent me to find you… John.."
I rushed to open the door with my sword, to find Matthius, at the end of it.
He pushed my blade away, Saying... "put that thing away before someone hurts you with it."
"Matthius, my brother.." I pulled him in from the open door, looking to ensure he was not followed.
He added, "James and I have been looking for you. Clopus said you had taken Mother and were here."
I called out to them in the back room… "Mother, Magdalene… it is Matthius. It is safe to come out. " Both women came forward holding one another.

Mother seeing Matthius broke into tears as did he as he ran to embrace her. Her sorrow was as present as her love for Matthius. Once again she was the one giving strength.
"Mother, the brothers are in the upper room where we took the Passover meal. They have called for John. Peter is there, he wants the brothers to gather this night as we have heard the rumors that the temple guard may be coming for us. There will be strength in numbers. Clopas will come with Mary once the sunsets and the Sabbath is over." Mother turned to me and spoke..
"Son...Go" "There is much for us to prepare for Jesus, and Clopas can help us move the rock."
Matthius spoke.."Mother the Chief Priest has ordered a guard to watch the tomb, Pilots men are there now."
Mother looked at me and repeated herself.. "Go, John." "And take your sword with you, we have no need for it here."
"Yes, Mother." I turned to hug her, but saw that she needed no strengthening from me, I saw her spirit was strengthening, it showed on her face and in her eyes there was a knowing.

Mother spoke a blessing "go with God." And looking beside me.."and the protector."
I gathered my cloak and wrapped it around me, hiding my sword, now tied to my waist. Matthius opened the door looking down the alley between the houses he waved to me and we slipped out into the early evening. We made our way quickly through the rows of houses now being lit by lamps. We passed quietly and quickly through the streets. Now that the Sabbath has ended many have come out to go to market. Some of the faces were familiar to me from the way of the cross. They were familiar from the way. Looking at them busied as though nothing special happened. They seemed like sheep without a shepherd. I had no time to even have pity, I could barely catch my breath. We were moving so quickly.

Finally we came to the place where we took the Passover, in the upper room. We pulled on the door, it was locked and the windows were all closed up. Matthius called out to the upper room. "Peter…" "Peter…" "Timothy... " just then the door creaked open, it was Timothy. "Brother, I found John, he is here with me now…"
"I was with Mother, she told me to come. She has Magdalene with her, they will be preparing to anoint the body. "
Timothy replied " Come quickly, we are on look out and watching the guard, they pass by here every hour… Come in quickly."
We pushed through the door. Timothy stood back as the door closed, he leaned over and grabbed me by the face and pulled me in. "John, I heard you were there, my dear brother." He clasped me close and began to weep…
"Judas is dead too...He hung himself with rope. We thought we lost you too."
"Nooo…"
My heart sank at the news...Then Jesus' words came to me "it would be better for him if he were not born…"
...but I loved Judas in all his odd ways...I loved him…
Timothy insisted..."Come, eat and sit with the brethren, we have the inner door locked, the guard will not get to us here."
"Matthius, John… brothers, come we are taking bread now."
We climbed the stairs to enter the room, there were many of the brothers here. I was struck by the fear in the eyes of everyone, but Peter. Peters head hung low as he sat facing the corner, he would not lift his eyes to anyone in the room.
I said..."It is good to be here!"

Soup & Penance Service

Our Soup and Prayer gatherings were a wonderful time to socialize, serve our community and be renewed in our faith through the Stations of the Cross and our Evening Prayer Service.

This would not have been possible without the participation of so many people and local businesses. We are grateful for soup and food donations from Goretti's Market, A & D Pizza and Felice and Ted Jakubiak. We were also blessed by our children and young people who hosted and served at the meals and assisted with the Evening Prayer Service. Finally, a big thank-you to members of our Hospitality/Community Life Group. They are a well-oiled, good humored and hardworking, "machine" that made life so much easier for all involved. We are blessed by your kind-hearted generosity.
